Synopsis

Blamire, a master of weaving narratives, artfully combines the divergent legends and ballads surrounding the renowned outlaw folk hero. His creative prowess gives rise to an uproarious, sprawling, and action-packed theatrical masterpiece. While the core of the legend remains intact, Blamire introduces a refreshing take that challenges norms and revitalizes the myth.

Central to this reimagined narrative is the character of Marian, a quick-witted and superior swords person. Far from the passive figures often found in traditional tales, Marian's presence introduces a dynamic element that reshapes perceptions of strength and heroism. Alongside her, Robin, the accidental hero, embarks on a journey that unravels against a backdrop of turmoil and injustice.

The story gains momentum as Robin's path intersects with that of the nefarious Sheriff, whose unsavory scheme to entangle young Ellen threatens to disrupt the lives of the characters we've come to root for. Meanwhile, King John's oppressive taxes cast a shadow over the land, providing a palpable sense of the injustices that our heroes must confront.

Amidst the chaos, the Sherwood Foresters emerge as a symbol of resilience, their legitimacy hard-fought and well-deserved. Blamire ingeniously guides the narrative toward a climax where justice is not just an abstract concept but a tangible force that sweeps through the land, rectifying wrongs and restoring balance.

In this theatrical triumph, the audience is treated to a symphony of emotions, laughter, and excitement. Blamire's ability to interlace humor, action, and depth ensures that each moment on stage resonates. As the final act unfolds, the audience is left with a sense of fulfillment—a reminder that even amidst the most convoluted of tales, justice and heroism can ultimately prevail.

Director's Note

Thank you for coming to Skyridge Theatre's 10th-grade production of Robin Hood! If you would indulge me for a moment, I would like to address two remarkable aspects about this production. First, this production represents a significant milestone for Skyridge Theatre in that every technical aspect, from sets to lighting, costumes to stage management, has been meticulously planned, overseen and executed by our talented technical theatre students. I am grateful for the dedication, ingenuity and capabilities of these kids, and would like them all to know that this show would not be where it is right now without each of them. Thank you!

Second, because you are the family and friends of the performers and technicians involved in the show, I do not need to tell you that they are a truly remarkable group of kids. Their dedication knows no bounds, their talent has been incredible, and their willingness to take direction has been exemplary. Yet their possession of these characteristics, while extraordinary, is not what truly sets them apart. What makes this group of students unique is their incredible kindness and unity as a group.

In a disciple where rivalry often lurks, and teenage angst is nearly omnipresent, these students have demonstrated maturity, character and integrity. They've showcased their talents, capabilities, and gifts, not only as individuals but as a harmonious ensemble. Their ability to come together, support one another, and create something magical on this stage is truly heartwarming.

As their director, I couldn't be prouder of this exceptional group of young individuals. In them I can clearly see that Skyridge Theatre has a bright and promising future ahead.

Thank you for being a part of this wonderful journey, and I hope you enjoy this production as much as we've enjoyed creating it.
