A Note From the Director

We all need a little positivity right now...more than a little, actually. Life has been - and continues - to be difficult, and if we wish for a better world, we need to be willing to be the change. But while I think we should all be more happy and hopeful, I don't think it's enough for us to simply smile away our problems. There is more to the challenge that lies ahead of us.

SpongeBob Squarepants: The Musical is a story about how a single individual's enduring optimism and durable determination can not only transform the attitudes and behaviors of those with whom he comes into contact, but of how such an individual's unflappable disposition can literally improve the world around him. That said, SpongeBob is not a blindly positive character. He does not simply ignore his problems, or fail to recognize his own faults or failings. He does not reject the fact that, at times, life will hand you lemons. He is just better than most at turning those lemons into lemonade. SpongeBob faces his challenges, he recognizes his inadequacies, and owns his insecurities. The powerful lesson in this story is not simply that we may survive difficult times, but that we can THRIVE through such struggles by clinging to our closest family and friends, by determinedly pressing forward while acknowledging our own limitations and recognizing the dangers that we may face. We can be determined AND attentive. We can remain positive while staying aware. We can be hopeful and optimistic without being oblivious. A little positivity can change the world...a little positivity can save the world.

Thus in the spirit of this musical, while it is true that we may all need a little positivity right now, it is perhaps more true that we all need to be a little positivity right now!

Special Thanks

We absolutely could not do these productions without help and assistance. HUGE Thank you to the cast, crew, and parents who assisted with set construction, especially Amy Wallengren, Brandon Pfunder, Michael Carrasco, and LJ Jones for sets.

To the parents and cast members who crafted so many beautiful props and costumes, especially Liz Shields, Lora Hollingshead, and Jennifer Youngs. The Skyridge custodial staff, the Skyridge administration team (especially Amie Sisam and Joe Atwood) for their support, and all of the students and parents who worked tirelessly on this production, putting in literally thousands of volunteer hours to help bring this project to fruition. Thank you!!
